

- A trait based personality test measuring the Big 5 traits and seven minor scales indicating an individual's fit to a specific role

Orpheus is a trait based personality questionnaire which assesses 12 traits comprising 5 major scales and 7 minor scales.

The five Orpheus major scales are based on the 'big five' model of personality, interpreted within the context of work-related behaviours, beliefs, attitudes and interests. The scales are Fellowship, Authority, Conformity, Emotion and Detail. They correspond to the 'big five' traits of: extraversion, tough-mindedness, openness-to-experience, neuroticism and conscientiousness.

The minor scales of Orpheus are Proficiency, Work-orientation, Patience, Fair-mindedness, Loyalty,

Disclosure and Initiative, and they are designed to assess the traits of carelessness, poor work orientation, anger, resentfulness, disloyalty, lying and inertia. These scales can help identify career de-railers and the fit of an individual's personality to a specific role or organisational culture. The seven minor scales of Orpheus are measured in depth in the Giotto questionnaire (see Giotto fact sheet for more details).

Orpheus identifies irregular response patterns, such as 'answering in a socially desirable way' or 'faking good' through the four audit scales of lying, faking bad, concentration and contradiction. This helps to ensure a more accurate interpretation of scores.
